The Teaching of Mathematics started in 1998 as a separate volume of “Nastava Matematike”, a pedagogical journal in Serbian, which has been edited since 1952.

“The Teaching” is exclusively research oriented. All contributed papers containing essentially new ideas and techniques relevant for teaching of mathematics at all levels, recommended by our referees, will be considered for publication. In particular, the papers containing subject analysis of selected teaching themes and new ways of their modelling will be welcomed.

The languages of this Journal are the congress languages of the International Mathematical Union.

The journal is fully Open Access and it is available through elib.mi.sanu.ac.rs/journals/tm

All published articles are made freely and permanently accessible online immediately upon publication, without subscription charges or registration barriers.

The Teaching of Mathematics is covered by DOAJ, EBSCO, Google Scholar, Mathematical Reviews, Zentralblatt für Mathematik.

Publication Ethics and Publication Malpractice Statements

The journal approves and supports the International Mathematical Union's

Best Current Practices for Journals \(2010\)

as well as European Mathematical Society Ethics Committee's

INSTRUCTIONS FOR AUTHORS

Articles sent for publication in the Teaching of Mathematics have to be in their final form and must not be submitted elsewhere while procedure in the Teaching of Mathematics is going on.

Manuscripts should be sent to:

Društvo matematičara Srbije, Kneza Mihaila 35/IV, P.O.Box 355, 11000 Beograd, Serbia

The manuscripts should include:

1. Title, with a (shortened) running title.
2. Author's name: first name(s) or initials, surname.
3. Abstract, at most 20 lines long. In the case the paper is not in English, an English translation of the title and abstract should be supplied.
4. 2010 AMS Mathematics Subject Classification, as well as MathEduc Classification, and Key words.
5. Author's full postal address and e-mail address.

We would appreciate if an electronic version (.pdf or .doc) of the manuscript is included.

Each submitted manuscript will be reviewed by at least two anonymous referees. On acceptance of the paper, the authors will be asked to transmit the source .tex or .doc file by e-mail.

E-mail address: nastava@matf.bg.ac.rs
